WILL ASK U. S. WRIT TO STOP SCOPES TRIAL

Defense to Invoke Constitution.

Surprise to Dayton

Dayton, Tenn., July 3.—(AP)—John T. Scopes, defendant in the Tennessee evolution case, has signed no petition for an injunction seeking to remove the trial from state to federal courts, and he has nothing of the proposed action until he reads it in a newspaper, he declared here tonight.

"I am leaving the legal aspects of the case entirely to my attorneys, and should they think it best for me to file such a petition I am willing to sign it," Scopes asserted.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

An effort to sidetrack the Scopes evolution case in Tennessee from the County court in Dayton, where trial is set for next Friday, to the United States District court in Nashville or Chattanooga will be made Monday by Prof. John R. Neal, senior counsel for Scopes, Attorney Clarence S. Darrow announced yesterday on his return from a New York conference.

This move will be made in two petitions asking temporary restraining orders against Gov. Austin Peay, Attorney General Frank Thompson and the prosecuting attorney of Rhea county, A. E. Stewart, to keep them from carrying on the prosecution of the young school teacher who dared to teach that the world and man came through evolutionary processes rather than by the creation of God as told in Genesis.

Prizes Federal Hearing.

Petitions, affidavits and arguments will be heard in a day or two if Prof. Neal can get three of the district judges to sit in the case. If the injunction is granted there will be no trial at Dayton. A hearing would be set for a permanent injunction in the federal court. Then witnesses possibly would be called.

The reasons for the eleventh hour change in defense procedure were stated by Mr. Darrow.

"We have felt," he said, "that this case probably would land in the federal courts anyway. So we decided that we might as well try this short-cut first. It will save time and expense."

"Another reason is that there is a disposition in many quarters to regard this case as a joke. People are not ready to take it seriously. Only $2,200 has been contributed by the public to the defense. We felt that taking this case to the federal courts directly to the federal courts, seeking the protection of the United States constitution, would draw public attention away from the seriousness of the situation and remove something of the circus atmosphere. If this falls we are ready to go to trial at Dayton."

Scope of Defense Petition.

In the first petition to be filed by Prof. Neal, Scopes is the plaintiff. The petition recites that he is a qualified teacher, having had five years of scientific special study in universities, that he was performing his work satisfactorily in Dayton when he was arrested and indicted for having inserted information to his pupils on the theory of evolution.

"The theory of evolution," the petition states, "is a central feature of science as taught today throughout the world. It is a feature and integral part of scientific instruction in every high school, college, and university throughout the United States and every civilized country. It is an inseparable part of modern science of geology, biology, medicine, anatomy, embryology, and chemistry."

"This petitioner could not conscientiously and efficiently fulfill the duties which he was appointed as an instructor in science and ignore or fail to teach the theory of evolution."

"This petitioner further alleges that the prosecution claims that the theory of evolution denies and is in conflict with the story of divine creation of man as taught in the Bible, and further alleges that it is not part of the curriculum of the Dayton public schools as instructed in science to compare evolution with anything except contemporary and accurately imparting to the people of such knowledge as has been achieved by mankind in the various fields covered by his duties and in which he has been and is an expert."

DEFENSE DAY PROGRAM

COOLER TODAY; YESTERDAY'S 98 SET 1925 MARK

Showers early today are expected to give Chicago a cool Fourth of July following yesterday's torrid heat. It was 98 degrees at 5 p. m., establishing a new high record for this year. Cooler was the prediction of the weather bureau last night. In fact, it grew much cooler before midnight.

The temperature yesterday shot upward thirty degrees in fourteen hours. The maximum was 103 degrees higher than the previous record for this year, 94.4 on June 5. It was within five degrees of the highest temperature ever recorded in Chicago in July, 103 on July 21, 1901.

The last official figures from the weather bureau last night, 11 o'clock, were 95, but a few minutes afterward a cool wind arose and before midnight the temperature had dropped to 76, as shown by an unofficial thermometer. By 1 a. m. the mercury had fallen to 74.

Wind and rain storms swept parts of Kentucky and Indiana last night. In some places they were so severe as to arouse fears of a tornado and sent many persons scurrying to cellars. One man was killed by lightning at Breasly, Ind.

One death was attributed to the heat at Louisville, Ky., yesterday. Other Kentucky cities reported temperatures as high as 100 degrees. Rain broke a period of severe heat at Omaha, Neb., during the day.

THE WEATHER

SATURDAY, JULY 4, 1925.

Barometer, 30.1; wind, S.W. 5 to 10 m.p. Moon sets at 4:47 a. m. July 5. Jupiter is the morning star.

Chicago and vicinity: Showers early Saturday morning, followed by fair to afternoon; cooler; light to moderate breeze; moderate variable winds.

Illinois—Partly overcast Saturday, probably showers in east and south portions, cooler; Sunday fair with moderate temperatures.

DEAN-ONATIVIA FAIL; INVOLVES MARKETING CO.

Partners' Loss Huge; Clients May Escape.

BY O. A. MATHER. (Pictures on back page.)

The most severe brokerage house crash in recent history of the New York and Chicago stock exchanges occurred yesterday when Dean, Onativia & Co. failed with liabilities estimated between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000.

It is the belief of the receivers and the firm's bankers, however, that assets will about cover liabilities and that there will be little ultimate loss to customers, although the partners in the firm will be hard hit. There were unofficial estimates that the assets would cover 85 per cent of the losses, meaning a $5,000,000 ultimate loss to the partners.

The failure came as a climax to a chain of circumstances that suggest the end of the $35,000,000 Grain Marketing company, which was organized several years ago as the most ambitious of farmers' cooperative marketing organizations.

Future of Concern in Doubt.

While plans are being discussed to continue the existence of this concern, it is the consensus that the cooperative feature has been definitely abandoned, a considerable blow. It is felt, to the cooperative marketing idea in practice.

Emmanuel F. Rosenbaum of the firm of Dean, Onativia & Co., also of the Rosenbaum Grain company, one of the factors in the Grain Marketing company, declined yesterday to comment on the future prospects of the Grain Marketing company. He said he could not make a statement until his attorneys had analyzed the situation.

Although the failure of Dean, Onativia & Co. does not involve the Grain Marketing company, it followed in the train of some difficulties the former organization has been having. The brokerage failure was closely connected with the affairs of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation, one of the big grain companies that merged for lease and eventual sale to the Grain Marketing company.

Cause of the Collapse.

The immediate cause of the failure of Dean, Onativia & Co. was depreciation in the value of 45,000 shares of Rosenbaum Grain corporation preferred stock, which was suspended from trading yesterday on the New York curb market and sold as low as $5 a share, compared with its issue price of $51 a share. This stock had been used by the brokerage firm as collateral for bank loans. When the banks demanded other collateral the firm could not make good.

The firm of Dean, Onativia & Co. was organized three years ago with capital furnished principally by E. F. E. S. and Joseph Rosenbaum of Chicago, who also are the chief interests in the Rosenbaum Grain corporation. The initial capital was $1,000,000, and this later was increased to $2,000,000.

Marketing Not Successful.

In February, 1923, the Rosenbaum Grain corporation marketed an issue of 75,000 shares of preferred stock of $50 par value. This stock was offered to the public at $51 a share, and listed on the New York curb market. The marketing was not successful, and, in an endeavor to support the price and also distribute the stock, the Rosenbaums bought back around 45,000 shares through the brokerage house.

The capital of the brokerage firm was used in purchasing stock, with the expectation that it later would be sold. When the bankers learned of this state of affairs and the inability of the Rosenbaums to make good the impaired capital of the brokerage house, it was inevitable that the failure and receivership should follow.

The difficulties of Dean, Onativia & Co. came to light through the affairs of the Grain Marketing company. This latter organization was founded to take over the properties of the Rosenbaum Grain company, the Armour Grain company, Rosenbaum Brothers, and the Davis-Noland-Merrill Grain company.

Partners' Loss Huge.

These grain concerns were to be the nucleus of a $25,000,000 cooperative marketing organization which would be financed by the sale of stock to farmers. The grain company property was sold at auction yesterday.

Two Killed, 3 Injured in 4th Mishaps

BULLETIN.

Boston, Mass., July 4.—(AP)—Six people were killed when the Pickwick club on Beach street, a night club and dancing place, collapsed without warning in the midst of Fourth of July celebrating early today. The roof and three walls gave way. Fifteen people were taken to a hospital. Police and firemen were called out to rescue about 100 men and women. The building was a five story brick structure.

With a section of iron pipe filled with powder two men began a Fourth of July celebration in front of 1331 Sunnyside avenue early this morning. As a result, one of them is dead at the Ravenswood hospital and physicians say there is little chance for the other to live.

Before becoming unconscious on the operating table the men gave their names as Charles Mack, 51 years old, 1445 Belleplains avenue, and Herbert Clyde, 35 years old. Clyde died while physicians were operating. His address was not obtained.

The two had filled the pipe with either powder or dynamite. They were ramming it into the pipe when it exploded. Mack's left leg was shattered and a hole blown into his left side. Clyde's left eye and the left side of his face were blown away. Both men were hurled thirty feet by the force of the explosion.

One Killed, Two Hurt.

The accident followed the killing of one boy and the injury of a man and a boy in other pre-Fourth celebrations.

Albert Diddie, 3 years old, 4413 South Troy street, was fatally injured while playing with matches on the rear porch of his parents' home.

William Lakowski, 16 years old, 3717 North Kedzie avenue, may lose his right arm and possibly his life as the result of fireworks display. A "flower pot" exploded as he was examining it.

An early celebrator fired a bullet into the left foot of a man standing on a west side street corner. The injured man, Nicholas Rooney, 40 years old, a laborer, 933 West Van Buren street, was taken to the county hospital.

WINS FIREWORKS RACE; DIES.

New York, July 3.—(Special.)—Samuel Schneider, a Mount Vernon shopkeeper, was killed today speeding in his automobile from Manhattan back to Mount Vernon to be the first of that city's dealers to take advantage of the receding early in the day of the Fourth of July fireworks ban.

Schneider heard that Mayor MacQuisten had obeyed the mandate of the Supreme court and removed the barrier to fireworks permits. He hurried to Mount Vernon city hall and got his permit. Then he bundled his wife, and their 2-year old daughter into an automobile, loaded the car high with pinwheels, crackers, and skyrockets, and started for Mount Vernon.

Crossing Second street he struck another car. Schneider was thrown out on his head and died instantly.

Celebrating, Burns to Death.

For Wayne, Ind., July 3.—(AP)—During a pre-holiday celebration today of the Fourth of July Mary Catherine Ward, 7, suffered fatal burns when her dress was set afire by a sparkler.

Child Is Burned.

Aurora, Ill., July 3.—(Special.)—Marjorie, the four-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Murphy, was burned about the head, body, and arms today when her dress caught fire from a fireworks sparkler.

SECURITY PACTS ONLY PATHS TO FINANCIAL HELP

Just Peace Urged by President.

BY GUY MCKINNEY. (Editorial Column.)

Cambridge, Mass., July 3.—(Special.)—Solemn warning to the governments of Europe that they must agree on permanent terms of peace and enter into mutual covenants for their own security if they desire financial assistance from the United States in the rehabilitation of Europe was sounded by President Coolidge today.

Standing on the historic spot where Washington received his commission from the continental congress, the President enunciated his as the first citizen of the ages and declared that if the principles he advocated in the first days of the republic were applied by Europe today all its problems could be solved.

In particular, he stressed Washington's abiding faith in his fellow man.

Wants America to Lead.

"I want to see America assume a leadership among the nations in the reliance upon the good faith of mankind," the President declared. "I do not see how civilization can expect permanent progress on any other theory. If what is saved in the productive peace of today is to be lost in the destructive war of tomorrow, the people of this earth can look forward to nothing but everlasting servitude."

"In urging the nations of the old world to make permanent peace President Coolidge declared that the world has tried war with force and has utterly failed, and that the only hope of success lies in peace with justice."

"No other principle," the President said, "conforms to the teachings of Washington, no nation of America, no other course makes so much promise for the regeneration of the world."

Premises Moral Support.

In urging security pacts for the old world the President made it clear that while this country would lend its moral support to them, it would continue its historical policy of refraining from making political commitments where it does not have political interests.

"If the people of the old world are mutually distrustful of each other," said President Coolidge, "let them enter into mutual covenants for their mutual security, and when such covenants have been made let them be solemnly observed, no matter what the sacrifice. They have settled the far more difficult problem of revolutions, they are in process of funding their debt to us, why cannot they agree on permanent terms of peace and fully reestablish international faith and credit? Let their differences in the future be resolved by means of arbitration and by the forms of judicial determination."

Only Basis for Help.

"Such a course would be sure to endow the participating nations with an abundant material and spiritual reward. On what other basis can there be any encouragement for a disposition to attempt to finance a revival of Europe?"

A few moments before the pageant the Shenandoah, the big navy ship, moved slowly over the heads of the crowd. Mrs. Coolidge was one of the first to notice it and pointed it out as she stood in the reviewing stand.

TEXT OF COOLIDGE SPEECH

Cambridge, Mass., July 3.—(AP)—President Coolidge's address at the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of George Washington's taking command of the continental army follows:

QUEBEC'S MILD LAW DRAWS U. S. MILLIONS

Moderate Drinking Seems the Rule.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Quebec, July 3.—[Special.]—The paradox of being one of the driest and soberest areas on the continent, in attracting larger hordes of tourists than ever this season, many Americans are pouring over the border, their tongues metaphorically hanging down to their collar buttons as they gaze at the old city with its quaint old buildings and its narrow streets. The law of the province is so strict that it is almost impossible to get a drink in the United States. A million travelers by rail, road and air are expected to strike the province this year as against 800,000 last, and at an average of $20 apiece, which means a low figure, they will spend at least $20,000,000 in the province, which is not a small sum. Instead of dry but soothed, they are a backward summer American automobile is striking in from the north. Cars with California plates are on the streets today, and many from Tulsa, Wichita, and Fargo and other points.

Little Drunkenness Seen.
Most American visitors, it appears, are not here to "kill it" once it is with a drink. On the train coming in, the smoking room crowd was painting visions of the heavy punishment it intended to inflict upon the old Scotch whisky. The moment it struck the rail road station, however, this part of the wine or lager was open manifestation of enjoyment, and then rested on that for at least the time being. Many of them the minute they strike the ground across the street into the government liquor shop and buy a bottle and lug it openly to their rooms. The bell boys are kept busy rushing up pitchers of ice and bottles of champagne.

It's a real awakening for some to discover that under Volstead they have lost their old drinking form, but most of them seem to adjust themselves to a reduced capacity. Sometimes a roomful gets rather noisy, but in general the people who come here to pick up a real drink do not come here to get drunk. The illuminating factor of the whole business is the restraint the visitors seem to place on themselves. The bulk of them use it temperately.

Miller Liquors Favored.
Quebec's liquor act is essentially a temperance act, contrary to the argument set up by prohibitionists that it is an act to stimulate industry by legalizing liquor. This observer on former visits here was impressed by the sobriety which seemed to accompany Quebec's experience in handling the liquor question, and in the last year evidence has been growing to strengthen this conclusion. They will be set forth in later articles.

The basic theory of the liquor law was to encourage the use of light wines and beer and discourage the use of spirits, and the data indicate that this tendency sought by the law is constantly growing, while crime, misbehavior and drunkenness are decreasing.

In the case of Quebec, to virtue is not merely its own reward, for the temperance legislation is profitable. Not only the provincial government has found it a source of rich revenue, but the federal government has cut itself in strong and has walked away with more of the dividends than has the province.

Profitable to Government.
The liquor commission in four years has paid out to the federal government $1,000,000, and has turned over to the provincial government $18,500,000. About one-fifth the provincial revenues come from liquor and the greater part of the profit comes from the American trade, including the purchase of the Kansas or Illinois deacon who buys a bottle to take as a souvenir to the loved ones at home, the thirsty who drink while they are here and carry away what they can in the automobile or Pullman, the gentlemanly amateur smuggler and the organized commercial bootlegger.

One thing, in passing, Quebec's sensibilities are shocked by the larger, lighter and ale signs that are mushrooming by the landscape. The government resents this as obnoxious to making the province look like a beer garden and making the beauty spots and it has been making a vigorous campaign against the sign boards. Besides, everybody knows it now, anyhow, so what's the need?

Government Loses Five
Seats in Dutch Election
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
THE HAGUE, July 3.—[Incomplete returns from Wednesday's parliamentary election show the loss of five government seats. The Socialists gained two seats. The reactionaries were unsuccessful, while one communist, however, was barely elected, defeating two moderate Reds. It is believed the present Catholic premier will resign in favor.

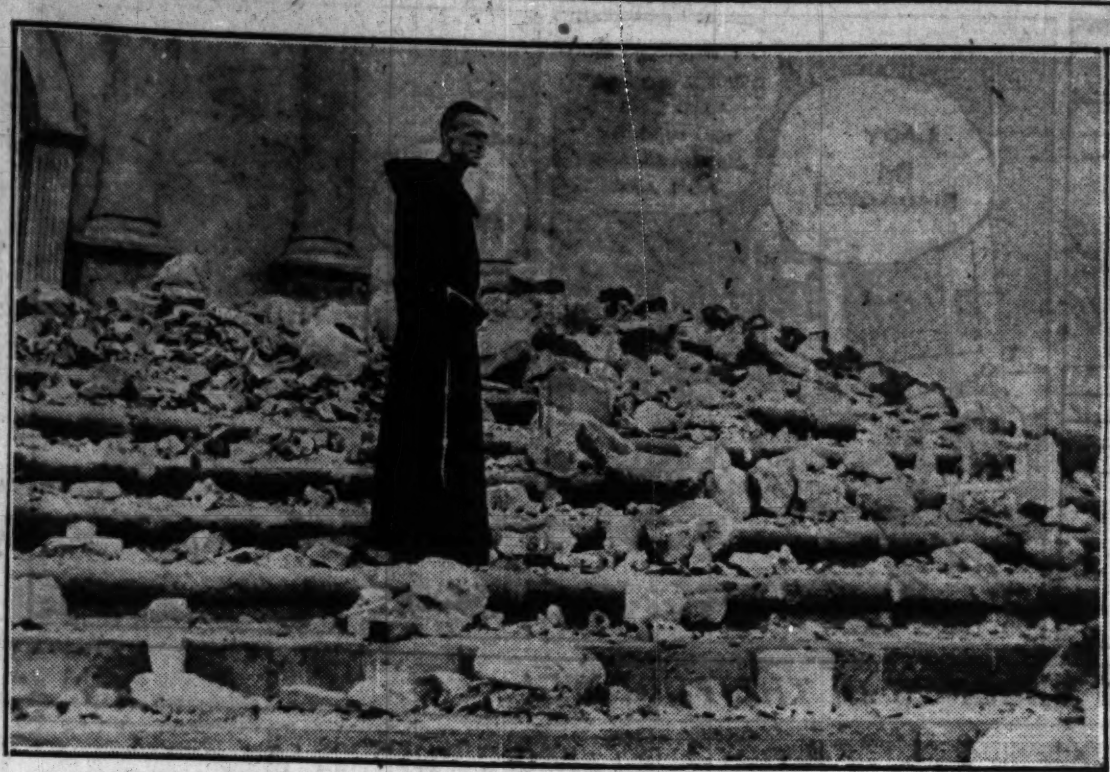

Steel Truck of Aluminum;
Miss Shipment of Gold
Three men halted Joseph Wehner, 3825 Wabash avenue, East Chicago, a driver for the United States Redwood company, at South Chicago avenue and 35th street yesterday and drove off with a truck containing aluminum, valued at $2,000. The Bureau police, to whom Wehner reported, returned the thieves intended to intercept a gold shipment being sent to the Redwood company for treatment.

erries were appraised at $17,000,000 and the companies advanced $4,000,000 as working capital, which was to be repaid by the Grain Marketing company by July 28, this year. But the campaign to sell stock to farmers has proved unsuccessful.

Several weeks ago officials of the Grain Marketing company conferred with Chicago bankers on securing loans and credit for operations during the new crop year. One of the banks took the stand that no credit should be extended until the company presented a clear statement of its financial condition and future financing plans.

The Grain Marketing company of foreign statements showing the condition of the various component companies. The statement of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation is said to have showed its liability for the purchase of its preferred stock, which was held by Dean, Onativia & Co. The value of this stock was largely conditioned on the Rosenbaum company selling its properties to the Grain Marketing company, and the bankers were skeptical of this deal being completed.

The fact that Dean, Onativia & Co. had purchased and held the stock brought the financial standing of the brokerage house into question. The banks asked a statement from the brokers and this statement showed that practically all of the firm's capital was tied up in Rosenbaum stock. The partners were given a week or more to raise new capital, but were unable to do so. A crash of such magnitude would be likely to have a disastrous effect on the stock markets.

So they set to work to avert anything that might appear a panic. Headquarters were established at the Drake hotel, and throughout the evening Chicago's financiers, corporation heads and brokers were summoned by telephone. The amount of stocks held in Chicago corporations by Dean, Onativia & Co. was made known to officials of those companies, and they were asked what they would do to prevent any market smash.

Stock Interests Give Assurance.
One after another these Chicagoans, representing the Stewart-Warner, Wrigley, Yellow Cab, Albert Pick, and Balaban-Katz interests, said they would take care of their stocks in the market. The heads of the big brokerage houses gave assurance that they, too, would make every endeavor to protect the market and prevent bear speculation from taking advantage of the situation.

How well this program was carried out appeared in the action of the New York and Chicago markets yesterday. Before the markets opened an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed by three small creditors of Dean, Onativia & Co. before Federal Judge Carpenter, who immediately appointed the Chicago Trust and Trust company receiver. Simultaneously a similar petition was filed in the federal court in New York.

Prices Decline, Then Rally.
Suspension of the brokerage firm was announced at the opening of the New York and Chicago exchanges. Then considerable selling ensued, particularly in Stewart-Warner shares, which were among the largest holdings of the brokerage house. But after an initial decline in prices, the prearranged supporting orders flowed in and prices rallied. In the end the declines for the day were held to moderate proportions.

While the Dean-Onativia failure is large in amount involved, bankers believed last night that the loss will be comparatively small. The firm owes $22,000,000 to its banks, being divided into $7,000,000 in Chicago and $15,000,000 in New York. These loans are amply secured by collateral. It is estimated that $7,000,000 additional may be owed to customers. Assets are estimated around $22,000,000, and besides there are the personal fortunes of the partners.

Hearings on the rates will start July 20 before the congressional joint committee, which will consider proposed revisions of the rates. Rates have been prohibitive in some cases, it is declared, interfering with uses of the mail which had proved beneficial to the public, tending to produce a loss, it is said, instead of an increase in revenue.

SANTA BARBARA ROCKED AGAIN; DAMAGE SLIGHT

4 More Tremors Drive
Residents to Open.

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—Santa Barbara went through four more earthquake shocks today. The first was at 8:39 a. m. and the other three were at 10:21, 10:41, and 10:46 o'clock. No great damage was reported and no persons were injured.

Reporters of the Santa Barbara News made a hasty survey of the city and found only nominal damage. The towers of the Old Mission shed a few more pounds of stone and mortar and the walls were raked a little more but the old structure still stands as it did after the heavy quake of Monday.

Quit Buildings for Open.
The people generally have sought the open spaces until the earth settled down. They are nervous but cheerful. Shattered structures trying to restore order, fled to the sidewalks and to a considerable extent business was suspended.

Because of the continued shocks telephone service was discontinued for a time this morning. The frayed nerves of the operators would not permit them to remain in their already damaged offices. Service will be resumed soon, officials say.

Billings Mansion Undamaged.
St. Anthony's college and the St. Francis hospital, which were badly wrecked in last Monday's tremor, suffered little additional damage. Following the shocks there were wild rumors concerning the damage, but they proved to be without foundation, or exaggerated. One report said that the mansion of C. K. G. Billings of Chicago, in Montecito, had been destroyed, but the buildings were found in practically the same condition as they were before the damage of Monday's quake.

The city officials report that the city hall, which escaped practically undamaged Monday, suffered a little in this morning's quake. Several large cracks were appeared in the walls. Along State street, where workmen are clearing away debris, bricks fell.

Tremor Felt in Los Angeles.
Los Angeles, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—An earth tremor of fair intensity was felt here at about 10:22 a. m. Telephone service from Ventura said a stiff tremor rocked that town, 28 miles south of Santa Barbara, at 8:38 o'clock this morning. No damage was done.

Passengers Jolted Twice.
Pasadena, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—Two slight earthquakes occurred here this morning at 8:38 a. m. and again at 10:13.

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 3.—[Special.]—Two mild earth shocks were felt here at 11:30 o'clock last night.

FOUR GIRLS HELD WITH SHEIKS FOR MANY ROBBERIES

Four young women and five men of the sheldish type are under arrest for recent robberies. Two of the girls are in the hands of the Maywood police and are alleged to have aided their two male companions in beating and robbing Eric Gilgash of Glen Ellyn. They are Anne Ellison, 19, and Lucille Mennell, 18, both of 1411 North Laramie avenue. The men are Raymond Corcoran, 1419 South 8th avenue, Maywood, and Alvin Joslin, 1918 South 7th avenue, Maywood.

The Rogers Park police have under arrest Edward Kahlman and his wife, Katherine, 16, of 834 Edgemoor place, Constance Freberg, a Milwaukee teacher; Arnold Turner, 824 Edgemoor place, and Emil Kohl, 934 Crescent place. They confessed a number of robberies, the men declaring they did it because the girls demanded it.

Buried 2 Hours by Cavein
of 11 Ft. Sewer, He Lives
Grand Rapids, Mich., July 3.—[Special.]—After having been buried nearly two hours in the cave-in of an eleven foot sewer trench, John Wenderlein, 32, was rescued alive tonight, but his condition is precarious. His partner managed to keep Wenderlein's face uncovered.

BROKERS' WIVES HAVE NAUGHT TO SAY OF FAILURE

Worried Voices and "Not at Homes" Prevail.

Some worried voices, some cold "not at homes," and one bit of cheerful optimism met an interviewer who called yesterday at the residences of the partners in Dean, Onativia & Co., seeking to learn the wives' reactions to the crash of the husbands' business.

Whatever the loss in the company, the partners must foot the bill, the law of the state being that their personal fortunes may be taken to discharge the indebtedness of the partnership.

"Can't Say Anything."
At 233 East Walton place, a tall apartment building, where J. Clark Dean, the senior partner, lives, Mrs. Dean answered the interviewer's knock.

"O, I can't say anything," she said. "I don't know anything about it. You must see my husband's lawyers."

So it was with Emanuel F. Rosenbaum, who is rated the influential of the partners. Sitting in his office of the Grain Marketing company, 208 South La Salle street, two floors above the offices in the same building of Dean, Onativia, "Manny" Rosenbaum wanted to talk about it, but it was said all the partners had agreed with their counsel to say nothing.

Court Action Unexpected.
"It all happened just a few hours ago," Mr. Rosenbaum said, as he twined his fingers about each other nervously.

"Didn't you know it was coming?" he was asked.

"O, we knew things weren't going very well, but I was sure the matter would easily be adjusted without any court proceedings."

"Mr. Rosenbaum's wife and family are in Switzerland."

Two of his brothers, E. S. Rosenbaum and Joseph Rosenbaum, also are partners in the business. "E. S." is the former is known, is ill at his home.

Victor Onativia, another of the partners, lives in New York. The residence of Benjamin R. Cahn, another partner, is the Pearson hotel. There one must pass inspection by a pompous young clerk before one may see the dwellers within.

"Why should you want to see Mrs. Cahn?" he queried. "She is out of town. I won't tell you where she is, and you can't find out where Mr. Cahn is, either."

That Bit of Optimism.
As for that bit of cheerful optimism, it came from the mother of

CHIEF REPORTS CITY GAINING IN CRIME WAR

Six months records, indicating, he says, that the police department is more than holding its own, were announced by Chief Collins yesterday.

In the last ten days police have nabbed 124 gun-toters and 575 persons with criminal records.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker and Capt. John Stege report 12,339 arrests in the first six months as against 12,197 for the previous twelve months.

The record of 5,922 fined in 1924 is contrasted with 4,074 fined during the first half of the current year. Of the 12,339 persons arrested, 610 were held to the Criminal court for trial, 41 sent to the county jail, 230 to the House of Correction, 231 to the penitentiary, and 123 fugitives from other states returned to the scene of their crimes for trial.

Harold E. Wiley, a bachelor and another partner. They live at 4811 Kimbark avenue.

"What do I think of it?" Mrs. Wiley, a dignified, charming matron, smiled and said, "Why, I'm sure it will all come out all right. No, I didn't lose any money in the business. I kept my money out of it."

There were no weeping widows storming the Dean-Onativia offices; no one complaining of the loss of their husbands' money.

One widow about 55 years old, who had her $1,000 savings in some oil stock with the firm, began to weep, but officials told her she would get her money; that she shouldn't worry. Soon she departed, satisfied.

One of the navy department has been given the first time granted permission to women to go aboard naval aircraft carriers.

The navy officials here today. The permission was given to enable the women in the party of governors now touring Maine to go aloft in the Shenandoah.

Gov. Nellie T. Ross of Wyoming and Mrs. E. Lee Trinkle, wife of the governor of Virginia, have signified their intention of going up in the dirigible tomorrow. The trip from Lakehurst was made in schedule time.

DUBUQUE GRANTS ELAN PARADE.
Dubuque, Ia., July 3.—[Special.]—The city council voted last night to permit the Elan club to parade on Dubuque streets during a district conference July 10.

COLLINS STARTS MOTORIZATION OF POLICE FORCE

Add 100 Small Cars for Patrol Duty.

Within ten days at least 100 Ford roadsters and ten large squad cars will have been added to the police department's equipment, Chief Collins told his captains yesterday.

Orders were issued to instruct every man in the operation of the small cars.

Four roadsters are to be assigned to each district and manned by two uniformed policemen. These will supplement foot patrols, except in densely populated districts. Policemen released from service in outlying districts by the advent of the roadsters will be assigned to traffic and civilian dress duty, the chief plans.

Predicts Motorized Force.
"A foot patrolman will soon be a thing of the past," Chief Collins told the captains.

During his conference with the captains the chief reiterated his order that policemen must carry their revolvers in holsters, and not in pockets.

Actuated by the knowledge that legislation revoking all justice of the peace gun totting permits became law without the governor's signature yesterday, the chief ordered that weapons confiscated in the future be rendered useless on the spot. In the past confiscated weapons have found their way back into the hands of gamblers.

The captains were warned against interference with innocent card games and told that gamblers on the part of policemen who arrest card players and gamblers when no stakes are in sight will not be tolerated.

Since a recent order directing sick policemen to claim their pension right to half pay before they were stricken from the department's active roll, 138 of the 185 policemen listed on the sick and disabled roster have returned to duty, the chief announced.

Failure in Studies Called
Cause of Boy's Suicide
Breeding over a failure in his studies caused Milton Oakdale, 19, a Crane Technical High school student, to take poison, according to testimony at a coroner's inquest yesterday.

A verdict of suicide was returned. The youth's parents, who live at 2715 West 12th place, asserted there was no truth in a report that an unhappy love affair prompted Milton to kill himself.

New Effort Next Week to Settle L Wage Dispute
A new effort to settle the wage dispute between the Chicago Rapid Transit company and its employees is expected to be made at a conference between company and union officials scheduled for early next week.

John J. Bruce and the executive committee will represent the union and Vice President Bernard Fallon the company.

TRIAL OF SOVIET AGENT IN CHINA ANGERS RUSSIA

SHANGHAI, July 2.—The trial of Zelnovl Demser, soviet oil agent, by the international mixed court on a charge of attempting to stir the Chinese to anti-foreign strikes and riots, promises to create international complications.

The soviet government declares the case is a frame-up and questions the right of the British to attempt the prosecution of a soviet official in China, which has complete treaty relations with Russia.

Bruce Barton Is Scarcely Modest
in His "Discovery"

"The Man Nobody Knows," subtitled "A Discovery of Jesus," by Bruce Barton, has caused more disturbance than any other book of its kind for many a day. Bruce Barton is the son of a minister. His father, Dr. William Barton of Oak Park, is not only a minister but a literary man. His really fine life of "Abraham Lincoln" was published this spring. Bruce Barton is also an advertising man, and his readers are divided between thinking that "The Man Nobody Knows" is a work of the minister's son, or the man who manages some of the largest advertising campaigns in the country. Dr. George Craig Stewart, rector of Saint Luke's of Evanston, a man whose pen is at once fiery and fine, has been kind enough to review Mr. Barton's book. The review says, as he says, "dashed off with a better-sheltered haste almost equal to his (Mr. Barton's) own. The book, of course, will be read by the public which takes its philosophy from Frank Crane, its theology from Billy Sunday, its poetry from Edgar Guest, its music from the Danes Sisters, and its music from Paul Beeson's orchestra. O tempora! O mores!"

By George Craig Stewart.

The amazing thing about this cheap little book is the author's part assumption that he has made a contribution to our understanding of Christ. That he should have read the gospels—evidently after years of regrettable neglect, is praiseworthy; to rediscover Jesus Christ is the experience of every reverent soul who reads and reveres that marvelous story. And to each reader he makes a different appeal. His mystical appeals to the mystic; his common sense appeals to the practical man; poets discover in him the supreme poet; philosophers find in him a greater than Plato; psychologists observe his handling of men; theologians weigh his teaching of God; and all simple folk listen to him gladly. It is, therefore, to be expected that an advertising man like Bruce Barton would discover in him just what he has discovered.

We have no complaint to offer. "The Man Nobody Knows" is a responsible modest on the author's part to assume that his particular discovery of Christ is of one whom every man should know. It would be nearer the truth to say that he has discovered for himself the One whom everybody knows, according to his own particular capacity and interest and spiritual discernment.

President Scott of Northwestern University, himself an authority in the science of advertising, has written the following sage remark: "Tell me who your 'everybody' is, and I will tell you what you are." Ponder that a moment and you will see the truth of it.

Bruce Barton's "nobody" is equally revealing. It shows the company he has kept—he assumes that Sunday schools represent the "everybody" of the young man with dabbly forearms and a cap and expression. Of course they do nothing of the kind, the state remark simply shows that B. B. doesn't go to Sunday schools—that is all. He charges that the clergy present the strong Son of God as "a physical weakling," which simply means that Bruce Barton doesn't go to church. Nobody apparently has discovered the vigorous vital Christ except Bruce Barton.

According to the publishers, one can read "The Man Nobody Knows" in two hours. They do not exaggerate. It can be read in half an hour. The guide in the gallery which you are in, a breathless "Lord, as a man, he has to make a train. While he reminds me that a party of Americans who visited the Louvre triumphantly announced that they had seen the "last" picture in the Revolution. St. Peter did the number, "I could have done it in less time if the floor hadn't been so slippery."

The other day we heard the wistful hope expressed that Bruce Barton's book might never reach England. One shudders to think what the English reviewers would make of this slapdash, hundred percent, red blooded gothic, American appraisal of Jesus Christ. The publisher suggests that this is shocking to the intellect; a signal to the mind to wake and think. It is a signal to wake and think, to think of what the apostles would have said about this little modern interpreter of their master. And we hope that any reader who is not content with stepping lively through the few of the gospel scenes and then suppose that they have rediscovered the incarnate Son of God.

St. John pondered long over his experience with Jesus, and you may read what he thought of it in his Epistles and in the Revelation. St. Peter did the same, and we have a number of his letters. So did St. James and St. Jude and St. Paul. And while what they discovered is not as light reading as this "discovery" of Bruce Barton's, and is slightly more theological (theology is simply thought applied to religion), still we dare to suggest that they discovered something to offer even to that worker and so entertaining a magazine writer as Mr. Barton.

"Serena Blandish."

There has been much conversation in England about "Serena Blandish" and the difficulties of getting married. "Serena Blandish" is supposed to have been written by "a lady of quality," and in New York they are simply glowing with it. Serena is a lovely, young, lovely, beautiful young lady who found it much easier to love than to get a husband. The story of her career, written in the most obvious, editorial manner, is a travesty which has been laid at the doors of Max Beerbohm and James M. Barrie, both of them much too subtle writers to have done Serena.

There is nothing subtle about Serena. She is frankly desirable and desirable. There are many who are horrified at her, but those who come to think she is a real girl, that is a highly moral tale of immorality is evidenced by the end of the story, when Serena accomplishes her goal.

It sounds to me more like Ronald Frank or Aldous Huxley's left hand than the work of most ancient and honorable couple. Anyway, it's a very naughty book, done with a very graceful pen.

MISS STERN IS SEEN
AT HER BEST IN NEW BOOK, THUNDERSTORM

By Sidney Dark.

I have for years regarded G. E. Stern as one of the most talented of living English women novelists, though she has constantly aggravated her admirers by writing books obviously not quite so good as they might have been. Her latest novel, "Thunderstorm," may be taken as the measure of her quality. It is a genuine work of literary art, far simpler and less complicated, and far more satisfactory than her "Tents of Israel." The characterization is delicate, the dialogue is humorous and witty, and the novel is the best thing that Miss Stern has yet done.

Another important book on Russia is "Since Lenin Died," by Max Eastman, which is a panegyric of Trotsky. It is a really important book, because Mr. Eastman has a deep knowledge of the original bolshevik policy and was followed by Stalin Zinoviev and Kamenev. Trotsky's redness was growing pink, but the triumvirate insisted on super-revolution. An English translation, by the way, of a book by Trotsky called "Literature and Revolution" will soon be published here.

Stephen Graham's "Russia in Division" is a really important book, because Mr. Graham has an intimate knowledge of pre-revolution Russia and has recently spent many months in the understanding of that country. It is a book that was at one time included in the empire of the East, and now border the new country to which the bolsheviks have given the ridiculous name of Sovdepia. Unlike most English and American who go to Russia in these days, Mr. Graham speaks the language of the people. He writes with genuine authority, and he has a mad tale to tell of the destruction of culture, the destruction of religion, and of a great people half starved and hopeless in the hands of a few hundred ruthless doctrinaires.

St. John Ervine is publishing a new play called "Anthony and Anna," which is a play about a young Englishman and a wealthy American girl. Olive Schreiner had almost completed a new novel at the time of her death, and this is to be published as she left it.

Isabel Neilson's
Heroine Fails
to Be Convincing

By Fanny Butcher.

The delights and the dangers of the autobiographical novel in fiction are no more obviously displayed than in a novel, "Madonna and the Student," by Isabel Neilson, who is, by the way, the daughter of Francis Neilson of Chicago, and London and European capitals and but lately president of the Dramatic League of America. Miss Neilson has told the story of a few months in Munich and what it brought an English girl who had the fate of a Madonna, the morals of the late dear daughter, and the conversation of a free soul in Hobbesia.

If the book had not been written in the first person and been extremely autobiographical, it would seem to be a character of the heroine wouldn't have been so, shall we say consciously satisfied. A dispassionate author could have made such a character impressive, and Isabel Neilson, a little like a cook wearing her mistress's gowns in the grand manner—the heroine wears neither her physical virtue nor her mental morality with conviction—and the state of mind of the heroine was unforgettable. No one has done the modern "free" girl, so far as I can remember, who travels wherever she will in Europe, has love passages in the most urgent sort in conversation, and still remains an utterly unapproachable and self-armed, virgin. The type is a not too common one, but one often enough seen—even in the United States where men are rather more used to women as co-workers and tennis partners and swimming rivals than they are in Europe.

The material to the hand of a novelist is rich with possibilities. Miss Neilson by using the autobiographical method just stops short of writing a book that is convincing, for the heroine, Isabel Neilson, is a little like a cook wearing her mistress's gowns in the grand manner—the heroine wears neither her physical virtue nor her mental morality with conviction—and the state of mind of the heroine was unforgettable. No one has done the modern "free" girl, so far as I can remember, who travels wherever she will in Europe, has love passages in the most urgent sort in conversation, and still remains an utterly unapproachable and self-armed, virgin.

This, I believe, Miss Neilson's novel. It is rather more a very frank diary than anything else, and it suffers from being that rather than a dispassionate novel. It shows more than the usual promise of the first book, however. It is illustrated with very nice cubistic sketches done by the author, which give a dash of the exotic to this story of a madonna-vampire (as her friends called her) and the flames of love with which a red haired student hoped to consume her Scotch Presbyterian morals.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Celebrating the Fourth

CONFESSIONS

Elmer Invites to Trip Over Sound Waves

Travels to the Old South and Back Again.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Let us together take a pleasant trip. That the contrasts and diversities to these other roads. In England she is ranked among the very best. Here she is slowly making a devoted pupil, which has never wavered since its first contact with her work in "Pope." "Pipers and a Dancer" was her latest, and there is promised for fall "The Little World," which is by way of being a California poppy. It tells of that amusing journey in a Ford across America which she took as a wedding journey when she became Mrs. O'Gorman Anderson and before they settled permanently in Shanghai. When I asked her what book she would rather have written than any other she answered:

Dear Miss Butcher: Very few books indeed come near enough to me personally enough to allow me to feel "I wish I'd written that." Face to face with a California poppy, I never think "I wish I'd created that." The writers I care for still seem like gods to me and my wishes don't fly to the direction of Olympus at all. Of course, when I am reading the work of writers who seem to me ordinary mortals I often think "I wonder how I'd have done that," but that is a different matter altogether.

The book that I feel I might have written had I been of the race of the gods is Tolstoy's "War and Peace." Somehow I know all the people of that book very intimately and even on the first page I was aware of my intimacy. Each reading of that book is like a dream to me, not only because I admire it so enormously, but also because it is so little discussed. I wish I'd written it. I only wish I'd lived it—and feel somehow that I really have lived it.

Tours truly,

Stella Benson

"What of It?"

Rine W. Lardner is now in the class of writers whose works are collected. There is no doubt about the fact that he is one of our most eminent literary figures in America. He is a really and fundamentally great humorist. But, like that other great figure in literature, Mr. Homer, he nods now and again. Some of the pieces in his latest collection of short stories and sketches are certainly noble, but the majority of them are howls. "What of It?" he calls the volume, and to miss one of the ones in it is to miss real irony. "Who's Who," "Welcome to Our Suburb," in which he tells of a friend who borrowed a lot of signs from the health department, and—dig for the humor—what he said to say, "What of It?" can now be had "The Big Town," "Gullible's Travels," and "You Know Me, Al," as well as "How to Write Short Stories," which contains that remarkable and impressive satire on American life called "Champion."

The Conrad Novel.

Joseph Conrad did not finish his tale of Napoleonic times, which was to have been published this year. The book as it is will be published anyway. On July 3 a limited edition of 377 copies will be published and will precede the regular publication by some time. It will be the first edition for England and America.

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—(P)—The Louisville Courier Journal today says that Walter White, superintendent of schools at Dayton, Tenn., has invited the Rev. William A. Sunday, evangelist, to assist in the prosecution of John T. Scopes.

"He Won't," Mrs. Sunday Says.

Hood River, Ore., July 3.—(P)—The Rev. William A. Sunday was not at home today, but his Sunday school teacher, Mrs. Sunday, who is in charge of the Associated Press that her husband has been invited to assist in the prosecution of John T. Scopes, Tennessee teacher of evolution, said: "I know he won't do it."

Child of Divorced Parents Tells Story of Unhappy Youth

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Here is a story by a child of divorced parents that answers a recent query presented in this column: How shall the child be trained to look upon the absent parent?

"I read your article written around a mother's question as to whether or not she should tell her son the truth about his father, whom she divorced. When I was two years old my mother and father were divorced. My mother took me with her. For the following six years I was taught how mean, hateful, cruel, and stupid my father was. I believed it. When I did any childish act that was wrong I was told: 'You are just like your father.'"

"My mother then decided my father should care for me, and I was sent to a relative of his. He was away at the time.

"The next four years I was taught how selfish, mean, and cruel my mother was. As my mind was young and pliant, and I had not seen my mother for some time, I believed it. Then a relative of my mother's took charge of me. She spoke no word against either my mother or my father. I loved her. She was the only mother I ever knew. In spite of her kindness, in the years that followed I was miserable in my mind.

"I could not understand how the offspring of such parents could even amount to anything, or ever hold her head up in the world. I was under the impression I was cruel, mean, selfish, and not fit to associate with other young people. Really, Miss Blake, more than once I have been on the verge of ending my life, so utterly miserable was I at times. I hated both my mother and my father, not for being what others said they were, but for telling me what they did about each other. I held them responsible for me.

"The relative who adopted me had a daughter whom I worshiped. When I came to live in the family she was married and had a child. How often I wished my mother was like that child's mother.

"Before I was out of my teens I married, not really because I wanted to, but because I was so disgusted with everything my mother and father did. My father and mother became united again and I went to see them. My father, after all, proved to be a wonderful man and my mother a wonderful woman. I am sorry to say it, but I did not love them. I resented them because they are due my respect as parents. But I cannot forget how they poisoned my mind, and how it, in turn, poisoned my youth. Those childish impressions came back to me at times and I am much disgusted. I suppose it is sinful not to love your parents, but I cannot help it.

"Has either one profited by telling me all those things? I have been married eight years and have three wonderful children. I shall certainly instill in their minds the fact that their father is the most noble of parents that ever lived. I shall tell them my parents were noble and kind. If I can help it, there shall be no such ugliness as I suffered meted out to them."

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Best to Forget.
"Dear Miss Blake: I was in love with a man who suddenly married some one else. I never quite recovered from the shock. A month ago another young man proposed to me. Shall I accept?"
"S. O. S."

If you could only stop thinking of the first one, I feel sure you'd have no trouble making up your mind. Don't you think that is foolish, for, after all, he is a married man?

To Be Expected.
"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend and I like each other, but my chum has interfered and it looks as though he likes her more than me. What shall I do?"

You may be good friends, even though he is paying more attention to your chum than to you. It won't be long until he finds another who takes his fancy. Boys are like change their minds weekly or perhaps daily.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Once Too Often.
It happened one week after I was married. My husband's people are old fashioned and strict. The women are accustomed to kiss one another every time they see us. I have been married and I was not used to this and found it strange.

A week after my marriage four of his cousins, three ladies and one young man, came to see us. Of course, the ladies kissed me, and in my confusion, instead of only shaking hands with the young man I kissed him. You can imagine how I felt. The three ladies opened their eyes and mouths wide; my husband stared in amazement, and that poor young fellow was red as a beet. I still blush when I see him.

Wrong Bottle.

I was called recently to one of my neighbors as her mother was having a severe heart attack. My neighbor asked me to get the alcohol or camphor bottle from the medicine cabinet and rub grandma with it while she called the doctor, who lived close by. He was at home and arrived shortly, and you can imagine my embarrassment when he exclaimed: "My Mrs. S., why are you rubbing her with turpentine?" In my excitement I had taken the wrong bottle from the shelf. J. S. S.

Fashions Seem Bound to Favor Youth and Ignore Middle Age

by Arbinette Donnelly

Middle-Aged asks if there is hope of a day returning when she may act her age, dress her age and be her age.

"Life must have been much more comfortable," she sighs, "when you could be middle-aged and plump and didn't have to follow the fashions."

In vain have dreamers been implored to take an interest in figures that aren't what they used to be, but fashion goes steadily on expressing youth, or what looks like it.

Some one said: "Fashion isn't really an effort; it's a battle."

The one who said that never heard of the meals that are a succession of omitted courses, lives that are a series of strenuous exercises, or reducing baths and stuffy rubber garments. Fashion isn't an effort—it's a battle. Because it is so much a matter of shape, it is your figure more than what you hang on it that gives the show away.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

MISS ROSE: IF YOUR SKIN IS dry and scaly, massage it at night with a good, rich cold cream, allowing it to remain on. A dry skin is tender and sensitive and one should avoid too frequent washing with soap and water. You may cleanse the face with a good cleansing cream. Before going out into the sun and wind, apply cream, wipe it off, and dust the face with powder.

MRS. R.: YOURS WAS AN UN- fortunate experience, and undoubtedly was due to an inexperienced operator. Superfluous hair is removed successfully from the face by the electric needle when the work is done by an experienced operator. A good depilatory may be applied to the arms or other parts of the body where it is desirable that the hair be removed. The following is a good one: Sulphur of barium, 2 drams, oxide of zinc and starch, 3 drams each. Mix well, and keep tightly corked. When you apply it, add sufficient water to make a paste, which is spread over the part and allowed to remain on a couple of minutes. Wash off, and apply a cold cream or soothing ointment.

MISS ZEE: THERE IS A GREAT difference in the skill of operators who remove hair by means of electrolysis. It is done most successfully if you put yourself in the hands of a reputable operator. You were unfortunate in not getting the right type of man. I cannot make any recommendations through my department, but the secretary of the Medical Society in your county would give you the names of reputable men.

MARCELLA M.: LEMON JUICE IS excellent for removing fruit stains from the hands. If they are obstinate, you may use powdered pumice stone, which has been wet with peroxide, and scrub off the stains.

ZETA O.: FOR SUNBURN, I KNOW of nothing so good as equal parts of linseed oil and lime water. The odor is unpleasant, but it does most effective work.

twenty years, she confessed to me: "I want to go and live on a desert island for the rest of my life. I want to eat what I want to eat. I want to wear comfortable old clothes. And I never want to look a mirror in the face again." I had come upon her in a discouraged moment. Then she began to figure what she would like at the end of the year, finally deciding she'd better go back to her daily dress and keep the old diaphragm down. The present fashions are surely the challenge of youth. Younger and younger they grow, slimmer and simpler the lines. Harder and harder it becomes for the middle aged.

But that's life all over. Along about the time you think you've earned comfort and ease, something reminds you it's a struggle. So one might just as well keep moving along with the parade. Charge it up to the price you have to pay for not being born in an earlier age. At that, we have no reason to believe our grandmas and great-grandmas got away with much comfort. Witness a picture of them trying to squeeze their overflowing waists into nineteen inch corsets.

Rent Receipts Will Never Make You Rich!

RENT receipts have never been known to found a fortune—unless you are the man who makes them out. Financial authorities say that the first move towards economic independence is the owning of your home.

The quickest way to acquire a home of your own—save your money and read the Real Estate Want Ad columns of The Tribune.

Treaty of 19

A dispatch to The Tribune from London says that the diplomatic break between Great Britain and Russia is imminent. It will focus the quarrels with Russia, which the Soviet government is seeking to intensify. Any such move might serve again to throw the world into confusion. The high level dispatches to The Tribune from London show:

LONDON.—Strained relations between Russia and Great Britain are said to be at their severest. A note may be sent.

PARIS.—Russia has threatened to raid and burn French colonies in China.

BERLIN.—Germany has sent a note to Russia against the death of German students in China.

SHANGHAI.—Russia has sent a note to Great Britain to prosecute Soviet agents in international court.

LONDON, July 4.—As relations are strained to the point by the Bolsheviks' activities in China. The government is expected to send a note to Moscow regarding the events which the British consider the Soviet's official position abundantly proven.

Under the 1921 trade agreement with Great Britain, the Soviet government is expected to be asked not to attack the British interests in Asia by propaganda. The British point out the impossible situation in China by Russian pledges and demand redress in terms of the trade treaty.

The whole question of Soviet relations has been before the cabinet by Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain in a memorandum. A strong cabinet favors the immediate action of the 1921 trade treaty reduction of relations to a minimum. This would mean the withdrawal of the Soviet agents in Great Britain, where Red propaganda centers are expelled.

Bolsheviks Are Apprehensive. The Bolsheviks in London are showing signs of apprehension and a firm attitude of government, which hitherto has been friendly to the Soviet. The Bolsheviks have launched a campaign. Rumors are circulating in London today, according to the Soviet, and the possibility of a complete rupture between Great Britain and the Soviet government. The Bolsheviks here also are transferring their relations from London to Moscow.

France and Germany. The beginning of the Anglo-Soviet relations by conversations with Paris, which may lead to a rupture against Bolshevikism on the conservative propaganda. The British government has offered France an offer recently was renewed. The house of lords plan the Bolshevik problem. The British government is expected to transfer their relations from London to Moscow.

Russia Accuses Poles. (Chicago Tribune Press Service)
PARIS, July 4.—The European are gravely alarmed by a new agency. Russia, about on the Russo-Polish front. The Soviet government has sent a note to Poland on June 23, and a Polish force of 20,000 men and twenty cavalry crossed the border.
